AMERICAN HOCKEY LEAGUE
PRESIDENT/CEO

American Hockey League

One Monarch Place – Springfield, MA 01144
Phone: (413) 781-2030 Fax: (413) 733-4767

Dear American Hockey League Fan,

Welcome to the 68th season of the American Hockey League, featuring the skill and enthusiasm of the best young professional hockey players in the world.

As the premier player development source for all 30 National Hockey League teams, our players provide fans across North America with highly skilled and competitive hockey. Last season 75% of all NHL players were AHL graduates, while 385 AHL players stepped up to see action in the NHL.

This season the AHL is proud to welcome the Toronto Roadrunners to our League, bringing our active membership to 28 teams.

Last year 6.7 million fans enjoyed the AHL's regular season and Calder Cup 2003 playoffs as we experienced our 15th consecutive season of record-breaking attendance. This year we expect to attract over 7 million fans to AHL games for the first time in League history.

On February 8-9, the 2004 AHL All-Star Classic will be held at Van Andel Arena in Grand Rapids, Michigan, with the AHL's top players participating in the annual Skills Competition and All-Star Game. This premier event will be televised live in both the United States and Canada.

In April, our fans can look forward to the excitement of the Calder Cup 2004 Playoffs as the AHL's best battle for the coveted Calder Cup.

We hope you enjoy everything the AHL has to offer and thank you for your continued support during our 68th season.

Sincerely,

David A. Andrews
President & Chief Executive Officer

Houston Aeros

The American Hockey League enters its 68th season with 28 teams as we welcome the Toronto Roadrunners, primary affiliate of the Edmonton Oilers. For the third consecutive season all 30 NHL clubs will develop their top prospects in the AHL, including more than 225 first and second round NHL draft picks.

the TICKET SHOW to the

During the 2002-03 season, 78% of all NHL players were AHL graduates, while 385 players took to the ice in both the AHL and NHL. The Stanley Cup Champion New Jersey Devils will have the names of 17 AHL Alumni engraved on the Stanley Cup including: Martin Brodeur, John Madden, Mike Rupp, Patrik Elias, Colin White and Jay Pandolfo.

Martin Brodeur
3-Time Stanley Cup Champion

the PLAYERS

AHL graduates continue to lead their NHL clubs in all major categories including scoring, rookie scoring and goaltending wins. Ten NHL teams were led by AHL alumni in scoring, including Pavol Demitra in St. Louis, Miroslav Satan in Buffalo, Steve Sullivan in Chicago and Patrik Elias in New Jersey.

2001-02 AHL All-Rookie Team Member Barret Jackman led the St. Louis Blues with a plus-23 rating last season and was named the NHL Rookie of the Year for 2002-03.

Twenty-three AHL graduates led their NHL team in rookie scoring including NHL Rookie of the Year Barret Jackman in St. Louis, Tyler Arnason in Chicago, Marcel Hossa in Montreal and Jason Spezza in Ottawa. Twenty-four NHL teams were led by AHL alumni in goaltending wins including Martin Brodeur in New Jersey, Dwayne Roloson in Minnesota, Jean-Sebastien Giguere in Anaheim and Dan Cloutier in Vancouver.

Jean-Sebastien Giguere won the NHL's Conn Smythe Trophy as the MVP of the 2003 Stanley Cup Playoffs. He spent parts of four seasons developing his skills in the AHL before becoming the starter for the Mighty Ducks of Anaheim.

head COACHES

During the 2002-03 season, 16 NHL head coaches were former AHL coaches. New Jersey Devils Head Coach and 2003 Stanley Cup Champion Pat Burns is a former AHL Head Coach, while Mighty Ducks of Anaheim Head Coach Mike Babcock coached in Cincinnati for two seasons before being promoted to the NHL coaching ranks.

Mike Babcock

"The AHL is a great development league for coaches and players. It was a great opportunity to coach in Cincinnati where I learned to balance the many demands placed on a professional hockey coach."

Mike Babcock, Head Coach, Mighty Ducks of Anaheim

MANAGEMENT

Jay Feaster

Twenty-two NHL general managers in 2002-03 were AHL graduates including Buffalo's Darcy Regier, Detroit's Ken Holland, Washington's George McPhee and Tampa Bay's Jay Feaster. Current St. Louis Blues General Manager Larry Pleau played, coached and managed in the AHL before moving into an NHL management position.

"I have been associated with the AHL as a player, coach and general manager throughout my hockey career. The League has proven a valuable stepping stone for players, coaches and management personnel looking to take the next step to the NHL."

Larry Pleau, Sr. Vice-President and General Manager, St. Louis Blues

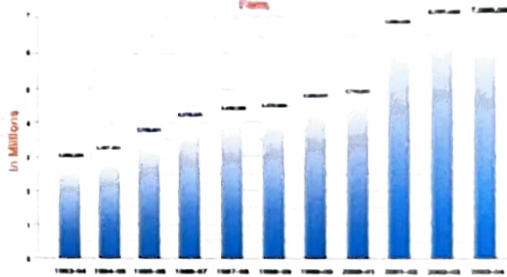

OFFICIALS

All of the National Hockey League's referees entering the 2003-04 season spent time developing their skills in the AHL. In addition, 26 of the current 39 NHL linesmen graduated from the AHL.

ATTENDANCE

The 2002-03 AHL season marked the 15th consecutive record-breaking season for AHL attendance as more than 6.7 million fans attended AHL games throughout the regular season and Calder Cup 2003 Playoffs. The Wilkes-Barre/Scranton Penguins sold out all games at the Wachovia Arena at Casey Plaza and averaged over 8,300 per game. While Game 7 of the Calder Cup Finals saw the largest crowd (17,428) in AHL playoff history witness the Houston Aeros win their first Calder Cup Championship over the Hamilton Bulldogs.

EXECUTIVE STAFF

Timothy Leiweke
President
Los Angeles Kings

In his role as President of AEG, Timothy J. Leiweke has acquired or merged more than 40 divisions and companies whose alliances create a global live entertainment organization capable of developing, producing, promoting, marketing and managing sports and entertainment programming in both facilities owned and operated by AEG as well as other venues. AEG divisions such as AEG Live, devoted to all aspects of creating, producing and promoting live entertainment including concerts, productions and special events; AEG Facilities, developers and operators of such venues as STAPLES Center, The Home Depot Center, Kodak Theatre and HealthSouth Training Center; AEG Sports; AEG Marketing, a sponsorship, sales, naming rights and consulting company; AEG Real Estate, Creative Services and Business Resources all operate under his direction.

As President of the Los Angeles Kings, Leiweke has been instrumental in the team's impact on the Los Angeles sports scene, spearheading a process to establish and maintain a solid organizational structure and positive, service-oriented relationships with season ticket holders, various group organizations, media partners and corporate sponsors.

Leiweke has also initiated the formation and direction of the Kings Care Foundation, which was awarded the 1999 Pro Team Community Award given annually to the franchise that demonstrates the most effective humanitarian community program in all of professional sports, including the NFL, NBA, MLB and MLS. In the last five years, the Kings Care Foundation and the STAPLES Center Foundation have pledged a combined $7 million to community organizations.

Along with his wife, Bernadette, Leiweke has spent an enormous amount of time and effort dedicated to numerous charitable causes within each of the local communities they have resided. As a tribute to his commitment to Los Angeles, he has been honored by such organizations as Para Los Niños, Inner City Arts, the American Diabetes Association, the Greater Los Angeles African American Chamber of Commerce, the Latin Business Association, the Korean American Federation, the Muscular Dystrophy Association as their Man of the Year, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce as their Distinguished Man of the Year and as the recipient of the LACVB's Los Amigos de Los Angeles Award. Leiweke is currently serving as the Vice Chair of the Los Angeles Convention & Visitors Bureau, as a member of the Board of Trustees for Para Los Niños and as a member of the Board of Directors of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, The Los Angeles Police Foundation and the United Way.

Tim and Bernadette reside in Brentwood, California, with their daughter Francesca.

Dave Taylor
Senior Vice President/
General Manager
Los Angeles Kings

No player in Los Angeles Kings history ever wore the uniform with more distinction, pride and class than Dave Taylor. For 17 seasons, Taylor gave his all, both on and off the ice, receiving numerous awards and All-Star status for his outstanding play.

On April 22, 1997, the Kings again turned to Taylor, appointing him the club's Vice President and General Manager. Solely responsible for the Kings hockey operations department, Taylor has implemented a long-term, 'build-from-within' player development strategy and Hockey League franchises.

This past summer Taylor added veterans Roman Cechmanek, Jozef Stumpel, Luc Robitaille and Trent Klatt to a roster already highlighted by Jason Allison, Ziggy Palffy, Adam Deadmarsh, Mattias Norstrom and Aaron Miller. That solid core, plus a group of talented youngsters, provides the Kings with the opportunity to win now and into the future. In addition, Taylor acquired several high draft choices, and the 2003 NHL Entry Draft marked the first time the Kings had three first-round selections.

On the ice, the Kings selected Taylor, an All-America hockey player while at Clarkson University, in the 15th-round (210th overall) of the 1975 NHL Entry Draft. His grit and work ethic blended nicely with the legendary Marcel Dionne, who helped ignite Taylor's career. As a member of the renowned "Triple Crown" line with Dionne and left wing Charlie Simmer, Taylor became a prolific scorer who also packed a fearsome check. Taylor's NHL career statistics include a franchise-record 1,111 games, plus 431 goals, 638 assists and 1,069 points.

A five-time NHL All-Star, Taylor served as the Kings captain for four seasons (1985-89), and after posting career highs in goals (47) and points (112) during the 1980-81 season, he earned a spot on the NHL All-Star second team. On April 3, 1995, Taylor's jersey No. 18 was retired. Taylor was later inducted as one of the six original members of the Kings Hall of Fame.

Away from the ice, Taylor works with a number of charities. Each year he hosts the Dave Taylor Golf Classic benefiting the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, which annually raises more than $125,000, and in 1991 the NHL honored Taylor's contributions to hockey and the community by awarding him both the Masterton and King Clancy trophies.

Dave and his wife Beth live in Tarzana, California, with their two daughters, Jamie and Katie.

Kevin Gilmore

Vice President of Hockey Operations/Assistant General Manager
Los Angeles Kings

General Manager
Manchester Monarchs

Kevin Gilmore is in his fifth full season with the Los Angeles Kings as Assistant General Manager. Two years ago he added Vice President of Hockey Operations to his title.

Gilmore, 39, assists Kings Senior Vice President/General Manager Dave Taylor in contract negotiations and in all facets of the Kings hockey operations department. In addition, Gilmore serves as General Manager of the Manchester Monarchs — overseeing the Monarchs hockey operations and business operations as well as the development of the Kings top prospects — after being integral in the Kings acquisition of the AHL franchise in 2000. During Manchester's two seasons, the Monarchs have made the playoffs both years and have compiled an impressive 78-51-22-9 regular season record. Also, the Monarchs led the AHL in attendance last season (averaging 8,986 fans) after finishing third in league attendance during the (8,199) 2001-02 season.

A native of Arvida, Quebec, Gilmore studied at St. Lawrence College in Quebec City and obtained his law degree from the University of Ottawa in 1987. He began his professional career in 1988 as an attorney with the Los Angeles law firm of Latham & Watkins. He later joined The Walt Disney Company as corporate counsel, and in 1993 he joined the Mighty Ducks of Anaheim as Vice President of Hockey Operations before eventually serving as Vice President of Business and Legal Affairs for the Mighty Ducks and the Anaheim Angels, where he handled the team's legal affairs as well as the negotiation of player contracts for both the hockey club and baseball team.

Prior to joining the Kings, Gilmore served as President of Newport Beach-based Professional Sports Advisors Group (PSAG), which provided consulting services for a number of NHL teams including the Kings. He has also been a member of the NHL's Salary Arbitration Panel and Contract Negotiation Panel.

Kevin and his wife Rachel live in Manhattan Beach, California, with their son Zackary and daughter Lola.

Jeff Eisenberg

President
Manchester Monarchs

Jeff Eisenberg joined the Manchester Monarchs as President in September of 2000. He was the first employee of the team, launching the organization from the ground up and quickly establishing the franchise as an integral part of Manchester and the state of New Hampshire.

Eisenberg, 47, oversees all aspects of business operations for the Monarchs, including marketing, public relations, ticket sales, sponsorships, promotions, advertising, arena relations, broadcast and merchandise. His commitment to offering exciting ice hockey action and exceptional family entertainment has helped make the Monarchs a success both on and off the ice.

Eisenberg's career in the professional sports industry spans over 20 years. He began his career in 1980 as the Assistant General Manager of the Holyoke Millers Baseball Club of the Eastern League. He joined the Philadelphia Phillies in 1981, working in the areas of sales, ticketing, marketing and information systems during his lengthy tenure there. While in Philadelphia, he led the development and implementation of the Phillies state-of-the-art sales and ticketing systems.

In 1991, Eisenberg joined the Milwaukee Brewers as Vice President of Ticket Sales. Under his direction, the team set new franchise records for season ticket sales in both 1993 and 1994. While in Milwaukee, Eisenberg introduced many advancements and innovations, including the club's successful introduction of club seating, expanded ticket sales operations and many new grass roots marketing and customer service initiatives.

In 1995, Eisenberg moved to Buffalo, New York, where he was Vice President of Sales and Marketing for the Buffalo Sabres and President of the Buffalo Blizzard soccer team. While in Buffalo, he played a lead role in the successful opening of the Marine Midland Arena, a new 18,500 seat downtown facility. Prior to joining the Monarchs, he also served two successful years in Portland, Maine, as President of the Portland Pirates.

A native of Memphis, Tennessee, Eisenberg holds a Bachelor's degree in Economics from Vanderbilt University, and a Master's degree in Sport Management from the University of Massachusetts.

In addition to his leadership role in the Monarchs Care Foundation, Eisenberg remains active in community service through several activities. He is a board Vice President of the Daniel Webster Council of the Boy Scouts of America, an adjunct professor and advisory board member of the Southern New Hampshire University Sport Management Program and a board member of the New Hampshire Hockey Hall of Fame.

Jeff and his wife Carole have three children, Matt, Kara and Alex. They reside in Bedford, New Hampshire.

AEG is one of the leading sports and entertainment presenters in the world. AEG, a wholly owned subsidiary of The Anschutz Corporation, owns or controls a collection of companies including facilities such as STAPLES Center, the London Arena, The Forum (as exclusive booking agent for sports and entertainment programming), HealthSouth Training Center and the Kodak Theater (as operator); sports franchises including the Los Angeles Kings (NHL), the Manchester Monarchs (AHL), the Reading Royals (ECHL), the Los Angeles Galaxy (MLS), the Chicago Fire (MLS), the Colorado Rapids (MLS), the New York/New Jersey Metrostars (MSL), the DC United (MSL), and six hockey franchises operated in Europe, management of shares of the Los Angeles Lakers (NBA), and the Los Angeles Sparks (WNBA), owned by Phillip Anschutz; AEG Marketing, a sponsorship, sales, naming rights and consulting company; Spring Communications, devoted to creation and marketing of live events for pay-per-view and other electronic media; AEG Creative, a full-service marketing and advertising agency; Creative Battery, producers of live entertainment for a variety of media venues; Concerts West and Golden Voice, live entertainment promotion and touring companies.

AEG is currently overseeing the development of L.A. Live, a sports and entertainment district adjacent to STAPLES Center. The proposed four million square foot development features a 7,000-seat, state-of-the-art theatre, and a 1,200-room, 45-story convention "headquarters" hotel along with residential housing, parking, entertainment, retail and office space.

In addition, AEG recently opened Home Depot Center in Carson, California. The $150 million development (the largest-ever private investment in amateur athletics) which has been designated an official U.S. Olympic Training Site, is southern California's new home of world-class competition and training facilities for amateur, Olympic, collegiate and professional athletes. The 85-acre development on the campus of California State University, Dominguez Hills, features a 13,000-seat stadium for tennis, a 27,000-seat stadium for soccer and outdoor concerts, a 20,000-seat facility for track & field and the ADT Event Center, a 3,500-seat indoor velodrome.

AEG has also begun development of several projects in Europe and Asia. The company was recently selected to fully develop the 28-acre Millennium Dome and adjacent property located in the eastern part of London along the Thames River and will create new arenas - both within the Millennium Dome and on a 50-acre site in the heart of Berlin.

The Tri-Town Ice Arena, located in Hooksett, New Hampshire, serves as the Monarchs official training facility. The 78,000 square foot arena opened in the spring of 1998. The arena, which houses two NHL regulation 85' x 200' surfaces, seats 1,300 for hockey and figure skating events. In addition to Monarchs practices, Tri-Town hosts several junior league and small college tournaments.

HOCKEY OPERATIONS

Hubie McDonough

Director of Hockey Operations
Manchester Monarchs

Hubie McDonough, a native of Manchester, New Hampshire, is in his third year as the Director of Hockey Operations for the Manchester Monarchs. His responsibilities include overseeing all player movement between Manchester and their respective affiliates in Los Angeles, California, and Reading, Pennsylvania, player immigration and team services. McDonough also oversees the Manchester Monarchs Hockey School.

McDonough, 40, was most recently the Director of Hockey Operations for the International Hockey League's Orlando Solar Bears. He helped guide them to the 2001 Turner Cup. Prior to that post, he served as an Assistant Coach for the Solar Bears during the 1999-00 season.

One of the most prolific goal scorers in small college ice hockey history while attending nearby St. Anselm College, McDonough captured the small college Hobey Baker Memorial Award in 1985. At Manchester Memorial High School, McDonough, who remains St. A's all-time leading scorer, played for his father, Hubie Jr., before moving on to play at New Hampton Prep.

Signed by the Los Angeles Kings as a free agent in 1988, McDonough enjoyed a 13-year pro career that spanned 955 games, including 195 NHL contests with the Kings, New York Islanders and San Jose Sharks. He twice was named to the All-IHL Second Team (1992-93 and 1994-95) and played in two IHL All-Star Games (1994 and 1995). He was selected as the Most Valuable Player of the 1995 IHL All-Star Game.

McDonough spent nearly four seasons as a player in Orlando and was one of the team's most consistent performers. With him at center, the Solar Bears twice advanced to the Turner Cup Finals (1996 and 1999) and they appeared in the IHL post-season all four seasons.

Bruce Boudreau

Head Coach
Manchester Monarchs

Bruce Boudreau, who is known for his development of young prospects within the Los Angeles Kings organization, is in his third year with the Manchester Monarchs.

In 2002-03, Boudreau guided the Monarchs to an impressive 40-23-11-6 consecutive year. Through two seasons, Boudreau's teams have combined for a record of 78-51-22-9.

Prior to joining the Monarchs, Boudreau was the Head Coach of the Lowell Lock Monsters, the primary minor league affiliate for the Kings at the time. He guided Lowell to two post-season berths.

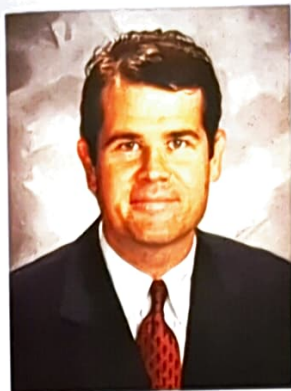

Boudreau served as Head Coach and Director of Hockey Operations with the Mississippi Sea Wolves of the East Coast Hockey League before his stint in Lowell. In 1999, the Sea Wolves captured the Kelly Cup after posting a 41-22-7 regular season record and an impressive 14-4 playoff mark. Overall, Boudreau had a regular season record of 109-75-26 during his three years with Mississippi.

Before becoming a coach, Boudreau, 48, played 17 seasons of pro hockey, including parts of eight seasons with the Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Blackhawks, recording 70 points (28-42-70) in 141 IHL regular season games.

While playing for the Toronto Marlboros in 1974-75, Boudreau scored 165 points, a junior hockey mark that stood until Wayne Gretzky surpassed it in the late 1970's. Boudreau, originally selected by the Maple Leafs in the third-round (42nd overall) of the 1975 NHL Entry Draft, also served as captain of two Canadian Junior Hockey League championship teams while with the Marlboros.

As a coach, Boudreau began at the helm of the Muskegon Fury of the Colonial Hockey League in 1992-93, before moving onto the Fort Wayne Komets of the International Hockey League. In his first season with the Komets, Boudreau, who is from Toronto, Ontario, guided them to the 1994 Turner Cup Finals, compiling a 41-29-11 record while picking up the Commissioner's Trophy as the IHL's Coach of the Year. In 1995-96, Boudreau served as Assistant Coach/Assistant General Manager with the San Francisco Spiders, also of the IHL.

Bruce and his wife Crystal reside in Merrimack, New Hampshire, with their four children, Kasey, Ben, Andy and Brady.

Jim Hughes

Assistant Coach
Manchester Monarchs

Jim Hughes, 35, comes to the Manchester Monarchs from the Boston Bruins, where he oversaw the team's defense and penalty-killing units for two seasons. Under his watch in 2001-02, the Bruins finished with the top penalty-killing unit (87.1 percent efficiency) and surrendered the fewest shots while finishing first in the NHL's Eastern Conference with 101 points.

Hughes joined the coaching ranks in 1992 as an Assistant Coach at Providence College. After two seasons with the Friars, he moved onto Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (R.P.I.) as an Assistant Coach and helped lead the Engineers to the 1994-95 ECAC title.

Following three seasons in private business, he returned to coaching and joined the International Hockey League's Orlando Solar Bears and Hubie McDonough in 1999. Like McDonough, he was a part of the Solar Bears 2001 Turner Cup championship team.

Hughes played four seasons of hockey at Providence College (1985-89) and served as team captain during the 1988-89 season. He was named the Friars Most Valuable Player and a Hockey East All-Star that same year.

Jim and his wife Ellen reside in Manchester, New Hampshire, with their three sons, Quintin, Jack and Luke.

Dane Jackson

Assistant Coach
Strength & Conditioning Coordinator
Manchester Monarchs

Dane Jackson, 33, enters the coaching ranks after an 11-year playing career that ended with the Manchester Monarchs last season. The native of Castlegar, British Columbia, captained the Monarchs for two seasons and ranks second on the team's all-time games played list with 139 (Eric Healey-140) games to his credit. Jackson, who appeared in his 700th professional game last season, totaled 57 points (22-35=57) and 173 penalty minutes with the Monarchs.

Originally drafted by the Vancouver Canucks in the third-round (44th overall) of the 1988 NHL Entry Draft, Jackson scored 18 points (12-6=18) and collected 58 penalty minutes in 45 NHL games with the Canucks, the Buffalo Sabres and the New York Islanders.

Jackson, who captained the AHL's Rochester Americans to a Calder Cup championship in 1996, totaled 431 points (199-232=431) and 982 penalty minutes in 671 career AHL games. In his current role, Jackson is entrusted with the development of the young forwards within the Los Angeles Kings system, helping them with their progression to the pro game.

Dane and his wife Kari reside in Hooksett, New Hampshire.

PATIENT ROSA CONTINUES TO PILE ON THE POINTS

By Mike Kalinowski

Ask Pavel Rosa if he's leading the American Hockey League in scoring and he'll politely say that he has no idea. You see, he stopped looking at stat sheets years ago, preferring instead to concentrate on the little things he needs to accomplish for his team to consistently win.

"I've always loved scoring goals and setting up guys for their goals," said the soft-spoken Rosa, who has averaged more than a point per game in his two seasons in the Queen City. "I'd be lying if I said I didn't care about scoring. But unlike some players, I won't look at the stat sheets until the end of the season. If I'm doing my job, the stats will be there when the season is over."

When he finally does take a look at the stat sheets, Rosa will likely be pleased with what he sees. The 26-year-old native of Most, Czech Republic, has held or shared the AHL scoring lead for most of the season.

Rosa, selected by the Los Angeles Kings in the second-round (50th overall) in the 1995 NHL Entry Draft, is making a strong bid to return to the National Hockey League, where in 34 career regular season games with the Kings he has 16 points (4-12=16) and six penalty minutes. The 5-foot-11, 188-pound Rosa enjoyed two brief call-ups with the Kings last season, and he hasn't given up his goal of becoming an NHL regular. Instead, he gains inspiration from current players in the NHL that play his type of game.

"I like to compare myself to players like Luc Robitaille and Brett Hull," said Rosa. "I'm not saying that I'm as talented as they are. But we do have similar styles. I especially identify with Robitaille, who was told early in his career that he couldn't skate well enough to make it in the NHL."

Rosa knows that his NHL dream is shared by every young prospect that laces up skates.

"It takes a lot of patience," said Rosa, who in January was named to the AHL All-Star Classic for the first time in his career. "This game is so competitive and for every player, reaching the NHL is the ultimate goal. It not only takes skill and a solid work ethic, it also takes a little luck. I haven't had the luck for the last few years, but I continue to hope that my time will come someday."

Ask Rosa about the highlight of his career and he'll quickly tell you that it occurred when he scored two goals in his NHL debut against the New York Islanders on December 17, 1998.

"Even today, that's still my most memorable hockey moment," said Rosa. "It was very special because I missed most of the previous season with post concussion syndrome. I went from thinking about retiring to getting a chance to play in the NHL. Scoring two goals in my NHL debut...that was amazing."

Rosa was injured during the 1997-98 season, his first in pro hockey after two very productive seasons with the Hull Olympiques of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League. Rosa grew as a person and as a player in Hull. On the ice, he adjusted to the North American game and became a better all-around performer. Off the ice, he met his future wife.

Pavel Rosa has averaged more than a point a game for the Monarchs during his two seasons in the Queen City.

Pavel Rosa finished second on the Monarchs with 28 goals, 35 assists and 63 points during the 2002-03 season.

"Leaving home and moving to North America was a big step in my life," said Rosa. "Before that, I had always been near my family. The first few weeks after arriving in Canada were tough. But I found a very good friend in Martin Menard, who was my linemate for two years. He helped me adjust to the North American lifestyle. We are still best friends."

If you're looking for a vocal leader in the locker room, Rosa is not your guy. He admits to trying it before. But, long ago, he realized that wasn't a role that he was comfortable with.

"I know I can be a leader on the ice," said Rosa. "We have enough guys in the locker room that will say what needs to be said."

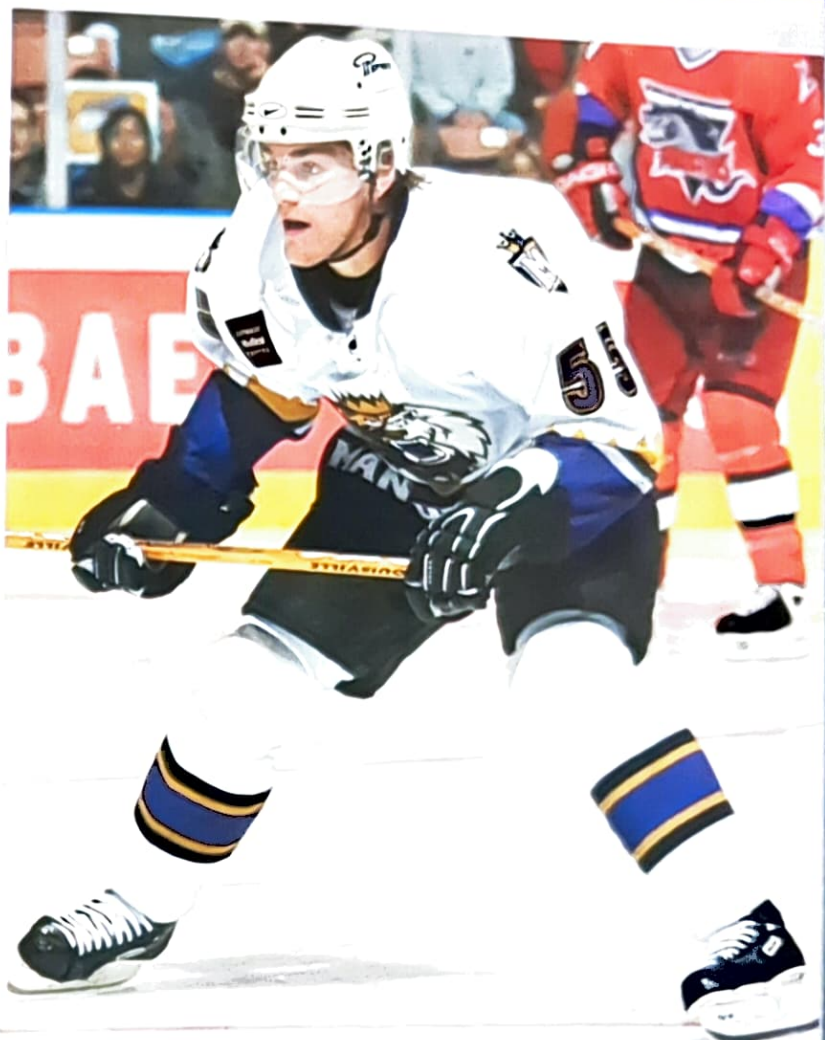

Rosa is much more comfortable as the locker room ambassador.

"I've played with so many different guys and in so many different places from Hull, to Long Beach, to Finland and now in Manchester," said Rosa. "Hockey has taken me around the world. I like to think of myself as an international guy who can get along with anybody. I especially want to help the young guys on our team. I want them to know that I'm here to help."

As he approaches his 27th birthday (June 7, 2004), Rosa feels like his best hockey is still ahead of him. His focus and preparation allow him to think that way.

"I've adjusted the way I spend my time both before and after games," said Rosa. "Everything is focused on the game. From the minute I enter the arena, whether it's for practice or for a game, I try to be focused. It's become a habit."

"I like to think that right now, hockey is the only thing I have," continued Rosa. "If I don't work hard and I don't focus on hockey, what else do I have in life? Of course I have my family, but in terms of achieving something for myself, hockey is the only thing I have. So, even on days when I don't feel like practicing, I try to find a way to push myself to be the best that I can be."

Rosa, who earlier this season recorded his first professional hat trick (January 4 against the Lowell Lock Monsters), is on pace to break the Monarchs all-time record for points in a season, held by former left wing Eric Healey with 73. If and when he does set a new scoring record, you can bet someone on the Monarchs staff will notify him of the accomplishment so he doesn't have to wait until the end of the season to see it on the stat sheets.

INSIDE SCOOP: DIFFERENT CULTURES WITHIN A TEAM

By Stephanie Krauss

At the heart of the Verizon Wireless Arena lies the Manchester Monarchs locker room. Prior to the start of every Monarchs home game, 20 young men gather there with one common purpose—the hockey. They walk through the big purple doors, adorned with the snarling lion Monarchs logo, to their respective locker that is clearly labeled with a shiny, metal plaque. There they find equipment neatly laid out and a crisp, clean, purple jersey perfectly hung in preparation for that night's game. They all suit up and walk through the runway to the bench, to take the ice as one team, united by the game they love.

Underneath their almost identical purple jerseys, each player has qualities that are truly unique. Many of these unique features can be traced back to what part of the world they come from.

The players can be easily categorized into four distinct cultural groups: French-Canadians, Western-Canadians, Europeans, and Americans, with the one exception being the lone Atlantic-Canadian representative, Ryan Flinn. They speak different languages, have different dialects and accents, and have different cultural norms.

They get much enjoyment out of the fact that they are a diverse group, and do not hesitate to lightheartedly share some of their more interesting differences.

Clothing Styles:

One of the biggest differences between the groups is what style of clothing they wear. The American-born players see themselves as more laid back when it comes to fashion, sporting mostly sweatshirts and jeans.

Jeff Giuliano, a New Hampshire native, can usually be seen wearing track pants that Monarchs captain Richard Seeley claims "Came straight out of Missy Elliot's closet."

"It's embarrassing," Seeley adds, jokingly.

The American players don't seem to mind, and they enjoy being fairly simple. When asked about the French-Canadians, the Americans see them as complete opposites.

Dan Welch explains, "The French guys wear the clothes in the back of Maxim and other magazines that you wouldn't ever think of buying."

Giuliano adds, "Of course, they somehow wear those clothes and get away with it. It works for them."

However, if one were to ask a French-Canadian, such as Yanick Lehoux, what he thinks about the clothing differences, he does not hesitate to share his opinion.

"The French guys are the best dressed, obviously," he says.

The Europeans are viewed in a similar fashion to the French-Canadians. Both are perceived as more "high-fashion" and "fancier" than the other groups.

"They've got their fake Gucci shades, sand blasted jeans, and button-down blouses," New Jersey native George Parros teases.

That leaves the Western-Canadians. To be honest, they are a difficult group to categorize. There are those who wear sweat pants every day and are perfectly content with doing so, such as one player from Beaverlodge, Alberta (who shall remain nameless), that is said to be a "Sponsor's dream."

"That guy will wear any free shirt they give him," says Seeley. "It's probably because they don't have any stores in Beaverlodge."

Despite that example, there are also the Western-Canadians who put a lot of care into the way they look—particularly those from urban areas. Overall, they are also laid back and share many similarities with the American players.

Jeff Giuliano and the rest of the American-born players on the Monarchs are more laid back compared to the Europeans and French-Canadians when it comes to fashion.

Communication:

With such a dynamic language pool within the team, it would be easy for communication problems to arise. However, for the Monarchs, it doesn't seem to be an issue. Head coach Bruce Boudreau requests that the players speak English whenever possible in the locker room to cut down on any potential confusion. Boudreau also takes the time to make sure that everyone understands what is going on.

The players seem to enjoy the varying languages. When a new player from another country, such as Russian rookie Denis Grebeshkov, comes to the team, the other players make every effort to understand him and teach him the key English words to know.

In Grebeshkov's situation, certain members of the team took him in and helped him adjust to life in Manchester. Once he started to learn how to express what he wanted to say, he began to open up more. English-speaking players such as Welch and Giuliano realized that he was actually very funny and added character to the locker room.

Do you know what a "toque" is? According to Richard Seeley, you would if you were from Western Canada.

There are times when other languages are spoken of course, but it is done respectfully. For example, if the French-Canadians are somewhere together, they will most likely speak French because it's easier for them. However, if a non-French speaking teammate is with them, they speak English. They all agree that everyone on the team gets along, and they would never want someone to misunderstand what is being said.

"When you don't know the language, it is easy to imagine what someone might be saying. You might even think it is about you. That is why we try to speak English as much as possible, so others can understand," says French-speaking Lehoux, a native of Quebec. "Everybody is great. Sometimes we try to teach each other words in other languages too," he adds.

However, even when speaking English, there can be confusion based on where they came from. For example, a winter hat, as we know it here in New Hampshire is a "toque" in Western Canada, Seeley explains. He also had never heard the word "hoodie" until he heard some of the American players saying it.

"Just say hooded sweatshirt!" he jokes.

Other Interesting Differences:

The European players are generally big fans of soccer and tennis. They can be found playing soccer in the hallway before every game. Parros is the only non-Euro or French guy that usually joins in on a regular basis.

He jokes that "Somebody needs to teach those guys how to play."

The American players, who self-proclaim in fun that they are "The best looking," can apparently be broken down into two sub-groups: those who are from Minnesota, and those who are not.

"Minnesota may as well be its own country," Parros says with a laugh. "Everything has some weird connection back to Minnesota for those guys. They need to cut the cord," he teases.

Some of the food that the players eat also differs based on what part of the world they come from. Lehoux reported that Grebeshkov always wants to eat dumplings. Many people in this area aren't even really sure what exactly a dumpling is. Also, the French-Canadians eat a lot of sushi, and the Europeans drink a lot of soda.

Even if the players do not always see the differences between their cultures, such as Seeley who claims that, "There aren't many strange tendencies coming out of the Western-Canadians," they do exist and are part of their everyday lives. Still, the players can work through the differences and come together as one because they all have one thing in common. This is part of what makes the team so special. When they step on the ice, they are the Manchester Monarchs hockey club, playing as one united, purple mass, doing what they love, and speaking one uniform language- hockey.

SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW YOUR MONARCHS?

By Ken Cail

So you think you know all there is to know about some of your favorite Manchester Monarchs? Think again.

Even the most ardent of Monarchs fans probably didn't realize that Pavel Rosa was instrumental in helping to develop technology benefiting those who have suffered concussions.

Rosa fell prey to a concussion during the 1997 Los Angeles Kings pre-season. As a result, he was limited to just three minor league games for the rest of the year and then he was sent out of state for rehab. Enter Dr. Michael Mellman. A member of the Kings medical staff, Dr. Mellman asked Rosa to become the subject in the maiden voyage of a new procedure.

Dr. Mellman introduced the young winger to the SportsTrac system, a PC-based system that measures results from a simple mental concentration and hand-eye coordination exercise.

The rest, as they say, is history. The SportsTrac system is now a scientifically proven method of knowing where a user stands mentally and physically, and Rosa was the first beneficiary. In his first game with the Kings following his recovery, Rosa scored a pair of goals. He soon requested a system for his home computer, saying it aided his concentration skills.

Rosa was the first pro athlete to use the SportsTrac system, and now it's become a staple in the NHL, Major League Baseball, and the NCAA.

Yanick Lehoux's statistics in the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League are legendary, but Lehoux was piling up good stats on and off the ice. During the 1999-2000 season, he was the recipient of the Marcel Robert Award, given to the scholastic player of the year in the QMJHL.

Where did Lehoux shine in the classroom? His highest marks came in "Political Ideology and Systems." A member of the committee who selected Lehoux for the honor said, "He impressed us by his great capacity to synthesize his thoughts and his analysis of the situation." Sounds like he could be in line to replace Barry Melrose in the ESPN studio after his playing days are over.

In that same season, Lehoux also captured a Guy Lafleur scholarship for his academic excellence.

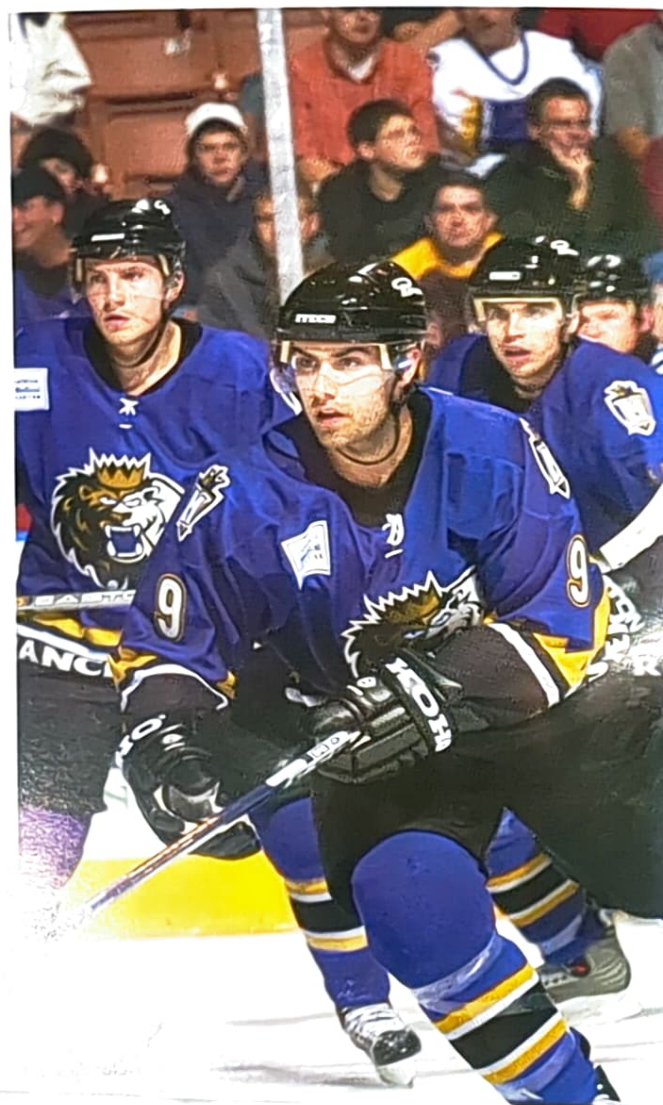

Earlier this season, Noah Clarke became the first native of Southern California to play for the Kings, but if you did some research in his hometown of LaVerne, you wouldn't find the name "Noah" on his birth certificate. What would you find? Simply, Baby Clarke. He seems to have survived the ordeal well, but Clarke went three whole months without a first name.

According to Clarke, "I was born and my parents weren't sure what to name me. The doctors told them I had to have a name before I could leave the hospital. They said we don't have a name yet, but we're taking him home anyway. "Baby Clarke" was then printed on the birth certificate. My dad would go into work every day and his co-workers would ask him, "Have you named your son yet?" He would say, "No, ah not yet." Each day it was "no, ah" until someone finally said, "That's it, Noah!"

As a goaltender he hasn't thrown too many punches, but Mathieu Chouinard has taken a shot at some punch lines. While growing up in a Montreal suburb, Chouinard tried his hand at stand-up comedy. During a recent edition of the Monarchs Insider, he also said he was once a budding thespian. He appeared in several French Canadian plays during his youth in Quebec. Chouinard is also the collector of classic movies and offers this bit of sage advice. "If you really want to see a bad movie, watch Rambo 3. I can't believe how Sylvester Stallone takes himself so seriously."

Manchester's resident entrepreneur is Adam Hauser. He has his own web site, adamhauser.com. Although used primarily to promote summer goalie clinics in his native Minnesota, there's also updated news concerning the Monarchs and a variety of articles authored by Hauser on his net-minding approach and philosophy.

Yanick Lehoux excelled both on the ice and at school during his junior hockey days with Baie-Comeau Drakkar.

The former University of Minnesota Golden Gopher is a self-taught musician who recently borrowed a guitar from a fellow traveler at the Salt Lake City Airport and passed the time by playing several melodies for those within earshot.

While on the subject of former University of Minnesota stars, winger Dan Welch would love to host a sports talk show. He has plenty of opinions on all issues athletic. He is a true sports fan. Here's proof: he hates the Metrodome in Minneapolis.

Having grown up without an NHL team in the area, Welch was a huge fan of the Gophers long before he became a member of the team that eventually went on to win an NCAA title in 2002. He attended many NBA games as a youngster and is a big fan of the Minnesota Timberwolves and Kevin Garnett.

And don't hold this against him Red Sox fans. Welch visited and loved Fenway Park but he's anxious to pay his first visit to Yankee Stadium.

MONARCHS MEDIA PARTNERS

Charlie Sherman - WMUR TV

Led by Sports Director Charlie Sherman, the WMUR sports team is where to turn for the best television coverage of the Manchester Monarchs in the Granite State. Sherman, Jamie Staton and Jason King have aired countless Monarchs features, including regular live shots from the Verizon Wireless Arena. They've also teamed up to broadcast the 2002 and 2003 Monarchs Home Openers.

Kevin Provencher - The Union Leader & The New Hampshire Sunday News

Beat Writer Kevin Provencher provides comprehensive coverage of the Manchester Monarchs both at the Verizon Wireless Arena and on the road, venturing to Lowell, Portland, Providence and other New England venues to follow the progress of New Hampshire's only professional hockey team. Managing Editor/Sports Vin Sylvia and Columnist Jim Fennell also frequently attend Monarchs games and provide coverage for the state's most read paper.

Greg & The Morning Buzz - Rock 101.1 FM (WGIR-FM)

Greg, Andy, Jeanmarie, Kelly and Roadkill are collectively known as "Greg & The Morning Buzz." The Buzz airs Monday through Friday from 5:30 to 10:00 a.m. on WGIR-FM 101.1 and WHEB-FM 100.3, and is home to the very popular "Monarchs Thursday" segment, heard on Thursday mornings throughout the 2003-04 season.

Mike & Moe In The Morning - Newsradio 610 AM (WGIR-AM)

For the third consecutive season, all 80 Monarchs regular season games will be broadcast live on Newsradio 610 AM, the flagship home of the Manchester Monarchs Radio Network. Monarchs Director of Hockey Operations Hubie McDonough and Head Coach Bruce Boudreau can also be heard all season long on "Mike & Moe In The Morning," which airs Monday through Friday from 5:30 to 9:00 a.m.

WHO IS JIM HUGHES?

By Kim Mueller

The quiet, soft-spoken man that has his office set up across from head coach Bruce Boudreau's is more than halfway through his first season as an assistant coach with the Manchester Monarchs. Jim Hughes brings National Hockey League coaching experience, an International Hockey League championship and an intense passion for winning to the Monarchs.

Hughes started his hockey career at Providence College in 1985. After playing four years in Providence and captaining the team during the 1989 season, he played pro hockey in Sweden and Austria. While overseas, he decided that he might want to get into coaching, so he returned to Providence College and became an assistant coach for a couple of years.

A 36-month break from hockey and a taste of the private business world helped Hughes realize that he needed to be part of a hockey team. He returned to the coaching ranks in 1999 with the IHL's Orlando Solar Bears of the International Hockey League, where he met Monarchs current director of hockey operations, Hubie McDonough. McDonough, as a player, and Hughes, as a coach were members of the 2001 Turner Cup Champion Solar Bears.

The success of the Solar Bears helped Hughes move to the National Hockey League. While in Orlando, he met Robbie Ftorek, who became the head coach of the Boston Bruins and took Hughes with him. Hughes served as assistant coach for the Bruins for two years before bringing his experience to the Monarchs.

"He has been a tremendous asset to our team this season," said Boudreau. "He is a very intense hockey man who knows defense very well and always wants to win."

Hughes is primarily a defensive coach with the Monarchs, but he also helps out with other aspects of the game.

"Some days I have ideas that help with the offense, some days they're for the defense, some days they're for the penalty killing units and some are for the neutral zone," said Hughes. "Whatever it takes so that at the end of the day we are successful, our players are successful and we win hockey games."

Residing in Manchester has been a very positive experience for Hughes and his family. He and his wife Ellen have three children, Quintin, Jack and Luke.

"Work is fun because the players make it fun, winning makes it fun and the atmosphere in this building makes it fun," Hughes explained. "Manchester is a terrific city with terrific fan support. Most importantly, we have a terrific group of guys to work with. They have a great work ethic and high standards."

As a Monarchs defenseman and captain of the team, Richard Seeley works closely with Hughes on a daily basis.

"He is a good teacher of the game and a pretty intense individual," said Seeley. "He is someone that you can learn a lot from. He commands a lot of respect both in and out of the locker room."

Quiet and intense, Monarchs assistant coach Jim Hughes brings a wealth of championship experience to the team.

The Monarchs are doing well this season, but, according to Hughes, there is always room for improvement.

"The next few months are critical for us in terms of finding a way to win and finding consistency," Hughes commented. "To win a few and lose a few and to play the way we've been playing is okay, but we need to find more consistency."

A head coaching position may or may not be in Hughes' future, but right now he is concentrating on his position with the Monarchs, the development of the players and winning more games.

"I would certainly like to win a championship here in Manchester like we did in Orlando, because it brings a great sense of accomplishment," said Hughes. "I just want to do the best I can. Usually when you do the best you can, good things occur."

Bruce Boudreau
Head Coach, Manchester Monarchs

The Executive Health and Sports Center is the official health, wellness and fitness center for the Manchester Monarchs. As head coach of the Manchester Monarchs, Bruce Boudreau watched many of his players gain significant strength and endurance through the use of the Executive Health and Sports Center and Express Fitness facilities. Bruce challenged the Executive Team to develop a personalized exercise program to help in his fight with Diabetes through weight training. Bruce completed his first trimester of training throughout the summer and said, "Before I started my program at the Executive, it was difficult at times to get through the day. Now I feel energized, my clothes are fitting better and my strength and endurance has improved significantly. I used to dread exercise, now I look forward to my workouts and actually find myself disappointed when I can't find time in my schedule to get my workouts in at the Executive."

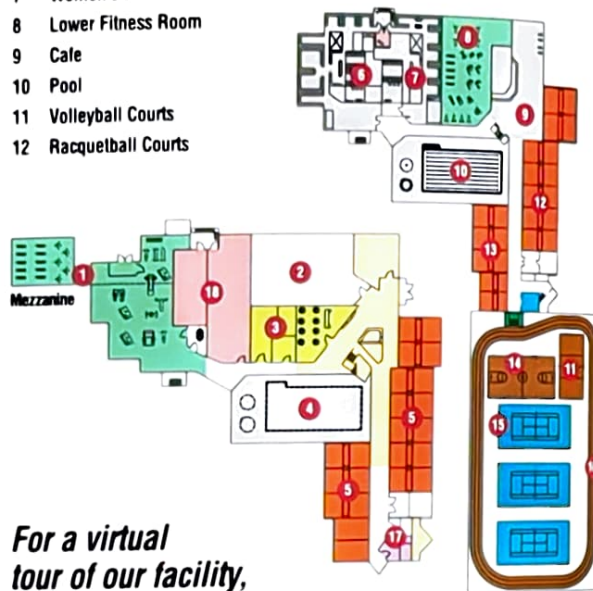

The Executive Health and Sports Center is the premiere health, wellness and fitness center in New England and provides a comfortable, supportive and non-assuming environment for its members to exercise in. The Executive's certified trained staff is committed to your health and wellness. If you have not made a personal commitment to your health and wellness as Bruce has done, now is the time.

Contact the Executive at 668-4753.

2003-04 AHL DIVISIONAL ALIGNMENT AND PLAYOFF FORMAT

SPRINGFIELD, MA ... The American Hockey League on July 15, 2003, unveiled a new conference and division alignment and announced the Calder Cup Playoff format for the 2003-04 season. The announcement came from the AHL Board of Governors' annual meeting on Hilton Head Island, S.C.

The AHL has returned to a four-division, two-conference setup, with seven teams in each division:

EASTERN CONFERENCE

Atlantic Division: Hartford Wolf Pack (NYR), Lowell Lock Monsters (CAR/CGY), Manchester Monarchs (LA), Portland Pirates (WSH), Providence Bruins (BOS), Springfield Falcons (PHX), Worcester IceCats (STL).

East Division: Albany River Rats (NJ), Binghamton Senators (OTT), Bridgeport Sound Tigers (NYI), Hershey Bears (COL/TB), Norfolk Admirals (CHI), Philadelphia Phantoms (PHI), Wilkes-Barre/Scranton Penguins (PIT).

WESTERN CONFERENCE

North Division: Cleveland Barons (SJ), Hamilton Bulldogs (MTL), Manitoba Moose (VAN), Rochester Americans (BUF), St. John's Maple Leafs (TOR), Syracuse Crunch (CBJ), Toronto Roadrunners (EDM).

West Division: Chicago Wolves (ATL), Cincinnati Mighty Ducks (ANA), Grand Rapids Griffins (DET), Houston Aeros (MIN), Milwaukee Admirals (NSH), San Antonio Rampage (FLA), Utah Grizzlies (DAL).

At the conclusion of the 2003-04 regular season, the top five teams in each of the four divisions will qualify for the Calder Cup 2004 Playoffs, allowing once again for at least two-thirds of National Hockey League teams' prospects to gain valuable post-season experience.

In each division, the fourth-place team will face the fifth-place team in a best-of-three qualifying round. Each subsequent round will be a best-of-seven. In the division semifinals, the first-place team will face the qualifying winner and the second-place team will face the third-place team from each division. The division finals will match the semifinal winners within each division, with those winners advancing to their respective conference final. Conference final winners will advance to the Calder Cup 2004 Finals.

ACE BAILEY

The Ace Bailey Children's Fund

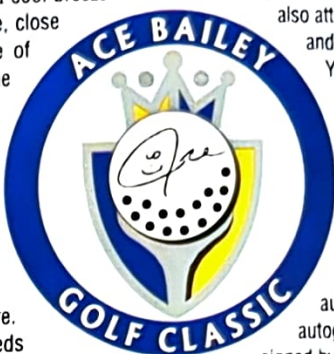

PRESERVING THE MEMORY OF ACE

By Erin Mahoney

At just about ten o'clock and with guests beginning to arrive, the clouds parted, the sun broke through, and blue skies with a cool breeze replaced the morning rain. Thanks to Mother Nature, close to 200 people were able to commemorate the life of Garnet "Ace" Bailey with their participation in the second annual Ace Bailey Golf Classic. Ace, the Los Angeles Kings Director of Pro Scouting until his tragic death, was a passenger onboard one of the two airplanes that crashed into the World Trade Towers on September 11, 2001.

The Ace Bailey Children's Fund and The Monarchs Care Foundation hosted the tournament at the Manchester Country Club in Bedford, New Hampshire. The event netted $30,000 for charity, with the proceeds earmarked for the development of "Ace's Place", a children's playroom that someday soon will be constructed at the Floating Hospital at Tufts-New England Medical Center in Boston. Ace, a former hockey star who played professionally for the Boston Bruins, the Detroit Red Wings, the St. Louis Blues, the Washington Capitals and the Edmonton Oilers, before settling into a career with the Kings, had a unique appreciation for life and an undeniable love for children. To demonstrate this love and preserve his memory, Ace's family established the Ace Bailey Children's Fund in January of 2002. The foundation is dedicated to improving the hospital experience for sick and injured children and their families.

Tournament teams comprised of five members, including one celebrity per team, took on the lush fairways and small greens that are trademarks of a country club considered by many to be among the finest in New England. Headlining the tournament was Los Angeles Kings star Jason Allison. The field of celebrities also included Kings Assistant

General Manager/Monarchs General Manager Kevin Gilmore, Kings Director of Player Personnel Bill O'Flaherty, Monarchs Director of Hockey Operations Hubie McDonough, Monarchs Head Coach Bruce Boudreau, Monarchs Assistant Coach Bobby Jay and Monarchs Goaltender Travis Scott. Former hockey greats like Brad Park, Gerry Cheevers, Terry Murray, Gordie Clark, Gord Kluzak, Rick Middleton, Ken Hodge, Don Marcotte, Gary Doak, Bob Sweeney and Steve Kasper also attended, along with current NHL stars Don Sweeney and Scott Pellerin. Boston College Head Coach Jerry York and former professional baseball and professional football player Tom Yewcic were also in attendance, as was WMUR-TV's Jamie Staton, who served as the Master of Ceremonies at the first-class dinner that followed the relaxing day of golf.

Along with dinner, tournament attendees were able to bid on memorabilia from some of the biggest names in sports thanks to both a live and silent auction. An autographed Allison jersey and print, an autographed Wayne Gretzky hockey stick and a football signed by New England Patriot's Kicker Adam Vinatieri were just a few of the items up for bids. Highlighting the live auction was an invitation to attend Gretzky's fantasy hockey camp in Arizona, and a trip to Los Angeles for some royal treatment with the Kings.

Overall the second annual Ace Bailey Golf Classic was a great accomplishment. The event succeeded in raising money that will help bring happiness to the lives of children, and it allowed many to share in the celebration of a man who had a unique love for life and touched the hearts of many.

The Monarchs would like to thank Kathy and Todd Bailey, Barbara Pothier, and all of the volunteers who worked at the Second Annual Ace Bailey Golf Classic. The Monarchs would also like to thank Manchester Country Club Pro Joel St. Laurent, Manchester Country Club General Manager Scott Hobden, and the entire Manchester Country Club Wait and Pro Shop Staff for making sure the tournament was a success.
